

Neighborhood Environmental Survey (NES)

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has undertaken a multi-year research effort to quantify the relationship between aircraft noise exposure and community annoyance around commercial service airports in the United States. As part of the FAA's efforts, the FAA conducted a survey to determine if there has been a change in the way people perceive aircraft noise and to help inform ongoing research and policy priorities. The results of the survey provide important information that the FAA will consider in reviewing existing noise policy, but the results do not change current policy.
